

Illingworth Research Group Hires Research Nursing Area Manager in Melbourne, Australia

1st February 2018

Illingworth Research Group, a UK-headquartered CRO with medical photography, on site and mobile research nursing services has appointed Sharon Hudson as the Research Nursing Area Manager, based in Melbourne Australia to help further expand our research nursing services throughout Australasia.

Ms Hudson has a wealth of Research Nurse experience and knowledge. She joins Illingworth Research to support the recruitment of experienced Research Nurses throughout Australia and New Zealand and oversight of the research nursing teams there.

Sharon adds "I am very happy to take on the role of Research Nurse Area Manager with a supportive, ethical company that offers mobile research nursing, photography and CRO services with 20 years' experience. I am looking forward to growing our services in Australia and continuing the "Illingworth way" Down Under! I am excited at the thought of taking clinical trials to the patients; as a vast country, we are all accustomed to travelling for work, social events and health care; particularly those located in rural areas. I remember talking to patients when I worked in Oncology and how often home visits would be wished for, particularly those nurse-led visits including vital signs, AE/con meds, bloods and IMP administration. The task for our patients is sometimes very time consuming and expensive. Finally, Australia is able to offer home visits to our clinical trial patients and I am so thankful, not only for the opportunity and impact on our health care system, but to be involved at the outset ."
